
Step back in time to the days of Classic Cars and Art Deco

The Auburn Cord Duesenberg Automobile Museum preserves and maintains over 100 classic, vintage, special interest and antique motorcars displayed in the 1930 art deco headquarters of the Auburn Automobile Company. The 120,000 square feet of exhibits range from the 19th century to the present.

The museum

continues to educate the public on the significant contributions of the Auburn Automobile Company and Duesenberg, Inc. innovations in technology and design, some of which are still in use in today's automobiles..

The museum is the only automobile museum located in its original company headquarters. The building is one of the finest examples of art deco architecture in the Midwest.

Exhibits tell the story of how and why Auburn and Indiana were significant in the development and evolution of the automobile.
